

Education in online trading

BY WILLY WILSON

ONLINE FOREX trading isn't typically viewed as a safe investment option, but sit down with Mario Singh, 35, for about an hour and you may just change your mind.

The founder and CEO of FXI Academy, Mario says he has led over 10,000 people to reach their financial goals by means of Forex trading. A regular guest on CNBC, Mario says he believes in "keeping Forex simple" in terms of delivery style.

"People have misconceptions about online trading, thinking it is risky. But as with other forms of investments, you only lose a lot when you don't know what you're doing," says Mario, who has appeared in a variety of media including ChannelNewsAsia, Smart Investor, Personal Money, FXStreet and Your Choice.

Proper education, he says, is a must before venturing into online Forex trading.

Online Forex trading, he says, has some benefits that can't be acquired through traditional Forex trading. The former can bring down transaction costs, increase market liquidity, and attract greater participation from many customer types.

It provides, he adds, a more convenient access for players to trade in the foreign exchange market.

At his academy, Mario offers three programmes.

"At Life Seminar division, we have basic, intermediate and advanced programmes specifically designed for new traders about the skills and the practical know-how to trade Forex for profits."

The Forex Intensive Training is a highly interactive two-day programme that equips beginners with the basic skills in order to get started in the field while the intermediate programme is designed for both beginners and novice traders.

The six-month Forex programme helps participants build a solid foundation for profitable trading while the advance programme known as Mario's Inner Circle, consists of intimate mentorship programme with the guru himself.
